

Q. And what we have here represents what you say?

A. That is right.

Q. During what period of time? A. During the late spring of—or, rather, the early spring of 1938.

Q. Does that hold true of these handwritten documents?

A. As nearly as I recall.

Q. The documents that have been enlarged which come from the strips of developed film, is it your testimony before God and Judge Goddard and these jurors that you received the originals of those documents and photographed them from Mr. Hiss? A. I did.

Q. Those documents on the films are 58 in number, I think. There were 58 frames, in other words 58 separate photographs? A. Yes.

Q. And the fact that they are in consecutive number convinces you that it was all part of one photographing job, is that correct? A. It does.

Q. Did you know that when Mr. Cross was reading to you late yesterday afternoon about your testimony before the Sub-committee on December 6 he was reading part from an interrogation of Mr. Wadleigh? A. No, I did not.

Q. You did not know that? A. Of course not.

[656] Q. Did you ever read the testimony of Mr. Wadleigh before the House Committee? A. No, I did not.

Q. You testified at the last trial that you got papers from Mr. Wadleigh, did you not? A. I did.

Q. Were any of these papers in evidence here received from Mr. Wadleigh at all? A. None of them.

Q. None at all? A. None at all.

Q. Did you ever receive any typed papers from Mr. Wadleigh? A. Not copies of original documents.

Q. Whom else did you receive typed copies of original documents from? A. I think I may have received a few typed paraphrases from Harry Dexter White, but I am not even sure of that.

Q. Harry Dexter White at that time back in 1937 and 1938, what was his position? A. I believe that he was the monetary expert of the Treasury Department.
